Bach and as a very successful pianist/organist/composer and conductor, he enjoyed the writing of this 18th century master; moreover, he was extremely interested in these Brandenburg Concertos and after transcribing all of the six, he toured with another pianist for several seasons performing them; needless to say, all of them are master works of melody, charm, and as world-known compositions, are performed in their original orchestral versions. However, more pianists are appreciating them and perform them as piano duets!
