Magnificent sounds from the Kreuzkirche organ (rebuilt by the British firm of Walker) in waht is decidedly a curio collector's programme. If you imagined that Christmas trifles belongs to the festive table, try this. The Broadway cadence that closes Karg-Elert's "Macht hoch die Tür" or the burglar-alarm effect in his "Resonet in Laudibus" are as nothing compared with Guilman's "Tochter Zion" and Lefebury-Wely's "Venite Adoremus". Geffert also plays more conventional fare most persuasively, including three Bach Choral Preludes.
