Mozart: Symphonies 29, 39, 40

This Hungarian conductor died young, in 1963 at less than 50. He had studied with Bartok and Kodaly but was also known as a Mozart specialist and recorded some of the operas as well as these symphonies. In fact, DG recorded these three symphonies at about the same time these recordings were made by the Berlin Radio; but DG used the Vienna Symphony. The Berlin Radio Orchestra (RIAS – Radio in the American Sector) was his own group, so these may be better than the DG recordings, which probably have not been issued on CD anyway. […]
